

Master of Science in Kinesiology

The purpose of the Kinesiology program is to provide an education and scholarly environment in which graduate students receive quality academic training and professional experience in the field of Physical Education and Kinesiology. This program will provide students with a broad-based education in Kinesiology. Specifically, the program will adopt the criteria established by NASPE. Students majoring in Kinesiology will find employment opportunities in sports marketing, recreational services, physical education, as well as jobs across the school, university, and community setting.

The program offers coursework and field experiences leading to the Master of Science in Kinesiology with teacher certification in Physical Education(Class A and Alternative A), or non-certification Kinesiology. The Kinesiology degree will be supported by the College of Education, Humanities, and Behavioral Sciences along with the Department of Health Sciences, Human Performance and Communicative Disorders.
